This Week—

By M. I. N. I.

In directing the executive departments to cut five per cent below whatever appropriations will be made for the next fiscal year, the Senate added a prohibition against reduction in pay. It was a gesture that does not bind the next Congress, but is welcome. The War and Navy Departments hope to meet the five per cent requirement and avoid reduction in personnel by diminished materiel activities. With National Defense menaced from so many directions, this is another unfortunate move that patriots in the House should oppose.

The House of Representatives by a non-record vote declined to cut its own salaries. In its speeches it dwelt tearfully upon the high costs of political living. It did not even propose that any member receiving an outside income be deprived of his congressional salary. It reserves pay attacks primarily for the Army and the Navy. That old saw as to whose ox is gored applies.

The Senate has confided to the incoming President dictatorial powers for the consolidation of federal bureaus and divisions but not of executive departments. It rejected a proposal by Senator Norris of Nebraska, who felt that the social activities of the Army and Navy would be curtailed if the War and Navy Departments were combined. Another blow to the idea of a single Department of National Defense.

Representative Connery, whose amendment striking at retired pay was adopted by the House, will preside at dinner of the District Department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, on Feb. 11, in testimony to Rear Adm. Robert E. Cootz, USN-Ret, National Commander. The action of the V. F. W. in so honoring Connery is something to wonder about. Let us hope that the Veterans will treat him as he deserves.

How selfish interest does change the point of view! When Representative Ewing Thomason was Mayor of El Paso he urged the Army to transfer the troops at Marfa to Bliss. The larger the garrison, the more money spent in El Paso, the greater the profit to the merchants, and the addition of glory to the political career of the Mayor. When Mr. Thomason ran for the House, he appealed to the Army to maintain the post at Marfa, because it would help him politically with the residents of that locality. Abandonment of Marfa in accordance with the plan he favored when Mayor has aroused his resentment, and now whenever an opportunity to show it appears he seizes it. The El Paso newspapers will be interested in this development in the public life of its one time Executive.

The Senate has "vindicated" its honor by dismissing David Barry, Sergeant-at-arms, who in defending Congress referred to the presence among its members.

Keep Up the Fight!

To all officers of the Army, the Navy and the Marine Corps.

We are glad to report progress in the battle against cuts in active and retired pay. But it is not yet won.

The Senate Committee on Appropriations recommended against the adoption of the Taber and Connery amendments. The Senate went on record against further pay cuts and specifically refused to add a 1 2/3 per cent pay cut to the furlough deduction prescribed by the Economy Act.

However, the Senate decreed an 8 1/3 per cent cut in the pay of enlisted men, active and retired, drawing more than $1,000 annually, adapted an amendment withholding retired pay from any officer receiving more than $10,000 per annum from civil employment, and approved a proposal directing heads of executive departments to reduce expenditures by 5 per cent under the appropriations to be granted.

The way the wind is blowing shows that anything may happen which carries the sacred name of economy.

The truth is Congress is in a state of panic. It has no fixed program. It is striking blindly in this or that direction. Herein lies the present menace to National Defense and to Service pay.

Therefore, it behooves the officers of the Army, the Navy and the Marine Corps both active and retired, to continue their petitions to the individual members of the Senate and House and to their friends and neighbors. The vicious proposals which repudiate the solemn obligations incurred by the Government to each officer when he entered the Service, must be overwhelmingly rejected. This will prevent their recurrence in the next Congress or at least their defeat should they reappear.

So keep up your work. Thereby you will give support to the emphatic opposition of the Chief of Staff and the Chief of Naval Operations.

Shannon Committee Urges Munitions Dept.

The Shannon Committee for the investigation of government competition with private industry submitted its report to the House of Representatives this week.

Highlights of interest to the armed services are the following recommendations:

Creation of a Department of Supplies and Munitions.

Abolition of Post Exchanges and Navy Stores.

Discontinuance of uniform factories in Army and Navy and of saddle factories in the Army.

Abolition of Army transport service and the shipping line of the Panama Railroad.

Discontinuance of paint and varnish manufacture in Navy Yards.

Discontinuance of ship and cargo salvaging by Coast Guard.

Text of Recommendations

The committee made the following recommendations concerning service activities:

"It is also of fundamental importance that all procurement agencies and activities of the War, Navy, and other departments of the government should be consolidated into one general Department of Supplies and Munitions under civilian control and direction. The military personnel of the Army and Navy should be removed as far as possible from procurement and productive activities and confined as far as possible to combatant activities and the development of military arts. Other departments would also through the creation of this new department be enabled to confine their activities specifically to the functions for which they were created.

"Such a change would be much more

Senate Group Rejects Pay Cutting Provisos

Shorn of the damaging Taber and Connery amendments, the War Department supply bill was reported out of the Senate appropriations committee on Feb. 6.

It is understood that the committee was virtually unanimous in its rejection of the Connery amendment prohibiting retired pay to any retired officer whose income is in excess of $3,000 a year and of the Taber amendment restricting credit for longevity pay to commissioned service under a Federal appointment or National Guard in actual Federal service.

When the bill was taken up on the floor of the Senate yesterday no objection was made to the exclusion of the Connery and Taber amendments. It is probable, therefore that they will be a subject for settlement by the conferees.

It is generally believed that the Connery amendment will be left out by the conferees and the Connally amendment, prohibiting retired pay when outside incomes for personal services exceeds $10,000 a year, be retained in the Economy bill to achieve the punitive objective of the Congressmen.

The Senate Committee also struck out the House's provision that no appropriation in the act shall be increased by transfer for the purposes of making a larger amount available for or on account of personal services or for increasing a limitation on any appropriation.

In addition the Senate Committee recommended the elimination of Representative Collins provision that motor trucks may be purchased out of any savings that might be made from the funds appropriated for care and maintenance of animals and animal equipment.

To safeguard the war reserves, the Senate committee recommended the in-

Service Amendments Voted in Economy Bill

Carrying a drastic requirement that all appropriation bills for next year must be cut administratively five per cent below the final figure set by Congress, and continuing unchanged for another year the furlough and pay cut now in force, the Economy Bill was passed by the Senate, Feb. 7, and sent to conference.

By voting down a Senate committee proposal for a 1 2/3 per cent additional compensation reduction, and inserting in the Bratton five per cent reduction in appropriations a proviso that it could not be accomplished by pay reductions, the Senate practically assured no additional pay cut for next year. Both houses of Congress are in agreement as to continuation of the furlough and no pay cut increase, and so this matter can not be touched in conference.

The Bratton amendment, however, has to receive House approval, and may be altered before final enactment. This measure has aroused officials of the War and Navy Departments, because of the drastic curtailment of activity which will be necessary to carry it out. The Navy, particularly, is alarmed, for it can see no other alternative than wholesale laying up of ships.

Other important Senate amendments, in which House concurrence is necessary are as follows: removal of the ban on automatic pay increases; withholding retired pay from officers receiving more than $10,000 a year compensation for personal services in private life; application of the 8 1/3 per cent pay cut to enlisted men drawing more than $1000 a year; fixes foreign duty tour in Hawaii at four years; gives to the President broad powers to reorganize Government departments, but not consolidate or abolish any departments.

Two important provisions affecting retired officers were written in the bill on the floor of the Senate.

Section 212 of the Economy Act which prohibits retired officers employed by the Government from receiving more than $3,000 in retired pay and pay from their civilian position, now exempts from its ban, "regular or emergency commissioned officers retired for disability incurred in

Legion Support

We take satisfaction in announcing that the American Legion played an important and effective part in inducing the Senate appropriations committee to reject the Connery and the Taber amendments. Brig. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, adjutant general of Maryland, and chairman of the National Defense committee of the American Legion, speaking for the Legion, denounced the amendments as vicious and destructive and did not hesitate to demand that the Senate refused to assent to the action of the House. It is a pleasure for the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL to inform the services of this patriotic action on the part of the Legion and its representative, General Reckord. It is the purpose of the Legion to oppose also the Connally amendment.

Press of Nation Calls Upon Senate to Defeat Connery and Taber Amendments

Sharp criticism has been made in the editorial columns of leading newspapers upon the action of the House of Representatives in voting the so-called Taber and Connery amendments in the Army appropriation bills. Denial of credit for enlisted and Academy service and the limitation of retired pay, as provided in these riders is seen as grossly unjust and a breach of contract on the part of the Government, by the press. The editors call upon the Senate to defeat the provisions.

"What appears to us a very unjust provision is contained in the war department's appropriation bill which passed the house of representatives on Jan. 24 and is pending in the senate", comments the Rock Island, Ill. Argus. * * *

"This provision, arbitrarily, and we believe unjustly, violates an implied contract between the United States and its army officers, which has been in force since 1842. It eliminates the counting of service performed prior to 1913 at West Point, at Annapolis, and as an enlisted man, for the purpose of computing pay of commissioned officers, both active and retired. * * *

"There is another provision in the pending appropriation bill under which no retired officer will receive pay if his income be more than $3,000 per annum. * * * The pay of such officers has always been small, but these officers had all been told that a sum was being set aside each year to provide for their old age in the shape of retired pay. * * * The obvious injustice of these provisions is clearly perceived the more they are studied."

Under the caption "Good Service Penalized" the Washington comments as follows on the Taber amendment: * * * "The House votes to deprive officers of pay they have earned by arduous service, much of it as enlisted men. Every one of these men deserves reward for having had the energy, faithfulness and ambition to become an officer. The annals of the Army have been made glorious by their deeds in years gone by, and during the World War.

"As a matter of decent recognition of extraordinary service the Senate should reject the House amendment."

"The retired pay of an army officer is deferred pay for services already rendered", states the Petersburg, Va. Progress-Index. "Retired pay is a chief factor taken into consideration in fixing the pay of an officer on active duty. This pay always is small, but is satisfactory to the officer, who is assured when he receives his commission that the government will care for him when retired and through his old age to the end of his days. The retired army officer living upon his pay is living upon the earnings of his active years.

"Officers of the army have never been liberally paid. Civilian employees of the government, as well as all workers in civilian employment had their salaries increased repeatedly to meet the higher cost of living, but army pay has not been increased since 1908. For congress to undertake at this time to take away or materially to reduce the compensation of officers of the army on the retired list would be an act of gross ingratitude and injustice."

"It may safely be said, we trust", states the Boston Transcript. "that the Senate will throw out this vicious amendment, which would break faith with every officer of the Government, active or retired, eliminate one of the chief inducements to the citizen to undertake lifelong service in the Army—that he will be cared for in his old age—and operate to create individual distress where it does not now exist. Congress already has legislated that a retired officer shall not receive two salaries from the Federal Government, but in doing that it has gone far enough. The finest thing in the military or any other service is a morale which prides itself in its work and looks forward for suitable recognition when that work comes to an end. Much retired pay is meagre, and many brilliant officers, forced out of service by the age limit, seek to increase their income by whatever means they can. That Major General James G. Harbord for example, is able to draw a salary as head of the Radio Corporation of America is only a testimonial to his ability, an exercise of his plain right as a citizen who has done his duty as a soldier. It is shameful that cases like his should be made the excuse for a grave injustice to the whole retired officer personnel."

"Army and Navy officers have entered the service and have remained in the service at rates of pay conspicuously under those which a majority of men of comparable training and capacity could command in civil life because they were assured of retired pay upon reaching the arbitrary age limit of 64", states the New York Sun.

"What the Government in effect said to a young man entering the service forty-four years ago at the age of 20 was this: 'We offer you low pay and slow promotion. In consideration of this we also offer you, when you come to be 64 and are forced to retire, retired pay proportionate to your latest grade.' Suppose that this same officer has just retired as a colonel, after having devoted forty-four years of his life to military service. If the amendment which the House added to the War Department bill is enacted the United States will be compelled to say to that same colonel: 'We had an understanding that ran for forty-four years, during which you kept your part of the bargain. The Government hereby notifies you that it cannot keep its part.'

"It is immaterial whether the colonel in question has an annual income of $3,100 in addition to his retired pay or not, though the carelessly worded amendment certainly permits the interpretation of retired pay as income. The essential point is that the right to retired pay is commonly and rightly reckoned as part of the remuneration of officers of the Army and Navy. It is no secret in Washington that this amendment was written into the bill to express resentment against a few retired officers who have identified themselves with the National Economy League. That does not alter the fact that it asks the United States to repudiate an obligation."

bership of a few crooks and numerous demagogues. Mr. Barry has service connections, a son in the Marine Corps and a daughter married to a naval officer. You remember the old story of the Captain who logged the Mate as "drunk on watch", and the latter's subsequent entry in the log: "The Captain was sober this day"? To close my reference to this sorry incident, I quote Senator Glenn, of Illinois: "We look after each other here in this body." How truth does come out!

General Sandino is contributing articles to the American Press in which he lauds his own ability in escaping the Marines and says that he conducted his operations with rifles and cartridges captured from the Marines. It might refresh General Sandino's memory to recall that he was an ardent observer of the aphorism "He who fights and runs away will live to fight another day." That he is alive he may attribute to the swiftness of his heels.

Lt. Col. George P. Ahern, USA-Ret., has written an extremely interesting and intelligent book entitled "Deforested America". I understand it is inspiring President-elect Roosevelt in his plans for water power development, protection of watersheds, flood control and reforestation. Another valuable contribution by an officer of the Army to the welfare of the country!

Newspaper gossip forecasts the appointment of Brig. Gen. William Mitchell as Assistant Secretary of War for Air, and Capt. Alford J. Williams, of the Marine Corps Reserve, as Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air. It is also reported that George Randolph Hearst, son of the publisher, is to be Assistant Secretary of the Navy. It looks like an air-minded administration.

The newspapers are acclaiming Linton Keith, 36 years of age, for standing first among 750 freshmen in a "scholastic aptitude" test. Of course,—he is an ex-Marine!

Crippling the Navy

The Bratton amendment, making a further cut of five per cent in Departmental supply bills mandatory upon the executive departments, would make necessary the laying up of 33 Navy vessels and the reduction of enlisted strength by 10,150, the Navy Department informed Congress in a letter sent yesterday to Senator Bingham and Representative Byrnes.

The Bratton amendment was placed in the economy bill by the Senate. Whether it stays in the bill or not will be determined in conference.

The Navy letter asserted that in order to make the cut it will be necessary to put out of commission (in addition to those already out of commission) three battle ships, two aircraft carriers, four heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, 13 destroyers, six submarines, two light mine layers and one dirigible. Together with the 49 vessels now out of commission this would make a total of 82 Navy ships on the inactive list.

In addition, the department declared, it will be necessary to keep the fleet on the West Coast, close certain east coast Navy Yards, slow down work on ships under construction, put 4,500 civilian employees out of work, restrict reserve activities, stop at once enlistments in the navy and marines, reducing the Navy enlisted strength by 9,000 men and the marines by 1,150.

Retain Fleet in Pacific

Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, yesterday issued the following statement:

"The budget for the next fiscal year beginning July 1, 1933 and ending July 1, 1934 having been materially reduced even further than the originally approved estimates, it is considered inadvisable at this time to cause any additional expenditures other than required for operation and maintenance of the combat units of the fleet. In the interest of economy it is probable that the Scouting Force will remain on the west coast until July 1, 1934.

The American Marines—Today and Tomorrow

By MAJ. GEN. BEN H. FULLER
Commandant of the Marine Corps

"THE hue and cry for economy has stamped the Congress and the Senate into a position where they are ready to slash almost anything," declared United States Senator LaFollette last Saturday. Therein lies the grave possibility that the strength of our National Defense may be reduced below the minimum required for national security. It is at such a time that the People and Congress should receive complete information regarding the vital necessity of an adequate National Defense. This duty rests upon the Army, Navy and Marine Corps. Sound decision and action proceed only from accurate information. False propaganda, spread for the purpose of undermining our National Defense, must be met with active and adequate counter-efforts by those who have taken the oath to "support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic."

Considerable concern was aroused several months ago when it was learned that the budget-estimates to Congress for the next fiscal year provided for only 13,600 Marines. This meant a loss of about one-fourth in the enlisted strength of the Corps within three years. It would bring the strength to about 1,400 less than it was before the World War despite the fact that the duties of the Corps have increased about one-third since then. Thus, it became very essential that the People and Congress receive the information upon which to base an intelligent decision upon the adequate strength of the Marine Corps as a part of the National Defense. Such information was elicited by a Sub-Committee of the House Naval Affairs Committee. The Secretary of the Navy, and all his naval advisers including the Chief of Naval Operations, President of the General Board, certain Chiefs of Bureaus, the Major-General Commandant, and others, testified, with the result that the Sub-Committee urged that the strength of the Corps should be increased to 17,000 instead of being reduced to 13,600. The full Committee unanimously adopted this report. Regardless of whether economy influences Congress to reduce the Corps, the officers of the Naval Service have done their duty in seeing that the People and Congress have received satisfactory information.

There is no such thing as a "depression" policy of National Defense which justifies less money be provided for National Security than in prosperous times. A strong National Defense is more essential today for possible service against domestic and foreign enemies than back in the prosperous days of five years ago when many more Marines were considered necessary. It is the preparation of today that wins a war tomorrow. A wise policy looks ahead.

The Army, Navy and Marines have nothing to do with the formation of national policies. Their duty is to support policies with the material means handed them. Regardless of the causes of any war into which the United States has been forced our National Policy requires that the war be won.

"We rely today upon the Navy as our first line of defense," wrote General Pershing recently, "and upon a citizen Army to furnish the troops essential for our protection." In peace the Army should devote itself to this major mission of preparing this citizen army. It is a fundamental principle that we must have a Navy, including a Marine Corps, that corresponds to our national policy.

The primary responsibility of the Navy and Marines, in war, is to safeguard our maritime interests, such as foreign trade routes over which a considerable portion of our national prosperity flows in peace and war. The President has been particularly aggressive in building up foreign markets. Millions have been spent for this purpose. Commercial representatives are stationed all over the world. A strong merchant marine has been created. It has been said that normally the income from our foreign trade means the difference between prosperity and depression. Consistent national policy would call for a Navy adequate to guard this trade in war and when we are a neutral. However, a glance at the figures of national finance show that in the last twenty-three years the proportion of the budget allotted to purely military and naval functions has decreased from about thirty-two per cent to about fifteen and a half per cent, while that for other agencies has increased.

If war came tomorrow, our National Policy would surely require the protection, by adequate armed naval forces, of the two billion dollar American foreign trade to the area that includes Eastern Africa, China and Australia as well as the valuable trade to other foreign areas.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt asked whether "in time of war would we be content like the turtle to withdraw into our own shell and see an enemy supercede us in every outlying part, usurp our commerce and destroy our influence as a nation throughout the world?" He answered by saying that "we must create a Navy not only to protect our shores and our possessions but our merchant ships in time of war, no matter where they may go."

All of this is what makes the Marine Corps an important part of National Defense, for it is the Marines who assist the Navy to secure advanced bases for the Fleet. Even if Regular Army troops were as adaptable for this mission as Marines they could not be spared from the Army's major mission. We have only one real advanced base (Pearl Harbor). Others will have to be secured after we enter war, for we have no assurances that we will have allies possessing them as was the case in the World War.

Operating during war from a home base in home waters our Fleet would normally be reduced by about one-seventh because about that fraction would be constantly under repair. Operating from the same home base, about five thousand miles out, the Fleet's effective strength would be about one-half only on the scene of operations, as half the ships would be enroute, or under repairs at the home base. In this case to increase Fleet strength to normal the creation of a base close to the operating ground would be indispensable. Thus do bases multiply ships. An article by Captain Dudley W. Knox in Naval Institute Proceedings for August, 1931, tells this story in convincing detail.

Marines can thus be defined in terms of American trade for they are instrumental in securing the advanced bases which enable the Fleet to protect such trade. Another way of expressing it is that Marines are the equivalent of warships because advanced bases enable more ships to be maintained on the scene of operations than would be possible without the bases.

The Expeditionary Marines also have a duty during war to support the Fleet with such limited auxiliary land operations as are essential to the prosecution of the naval campaign.

During peace the Marines guard all the Navy shore activities, serve as aviators, and maintain their own bases. They serve on Navy ships to secure the essential naval training that makes them Marines. Those who do not perform sea-duty are indoctrinated by those who do. At the same time the Navy is afforded an opportunity of learning about the Marines and their work. Teamwork is thus perfected and the Naval Machine becomes the effective organization that best can serve the Nation in war and peace. The Marines make every effort in peace to maintain a nucleus of the expeditionary force which must be expanded in war to its full strength to serve with the Fleet.

Active National Defense goes on in peace as in war. Our National Defense frontiers have been extended to the Panama Canal. The Navy and the Marines have frequently been entrusted with the important National Defense duty of watching the area between the Rio Grande and the Canal. The duty of the Navy and Marines in China today is National Defense duty in close support of the National Policies. The policy that sends the Marines on such duty is an American policy, not one of a political party.

And Tomorrow will not be much different from Yesterday or Today.

The above opinions or assertions are the private ones of the writer and are not to be construed as official or reflecting the views of the Navy Department or the naval service at large.

(Next week's article will be by Lt. Comdr. Raymond Virgil Marron, USCG, on the subject, "Radio Equipment and Electrical Shielding on the New Coast Guard Flying Life Boat.")

Favor Taber Amendment

Under the title "Support the Taber amendment in behalf of 8,000 officers of the Army", the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL is in receipt of a letter which, it is understood, is being circulated in mimeograph form.

The letter opens with a quotation from the Interdepartmental Pay Board's report that "Pay should be based fundamentally on the responsibilities inherent in the grade held and on the normal service to be expected of an officer holding such grade". "The findings of the Pay Board," the letter declares, "and the Joint Committee support the amendment to the Army Supply Bill recently offered in the House by Representative Taber of New York."

"This amendment," the letter states referring to the Taber amendment, "already passed by the House, will if retained in the Army Appropriation Bill, completely clarify the present tangled and incongruous pay situation and rid the Services of a pay schedule that for over ten years has discriminated against two-thirds of the Officers of the Army and violated all the accepted principles of payment to the individual for services rendered."

"The discriminatory features of the schedule now in effect have made it profitable for a preferred group to consistently lobby against and defeat all legislation proposed during the past ten years to obtain a fairer pay schedule for the entire commissioned personnel."

"The self-interest of the unjustly favored group has thus prevented the passage of legislation that would give junior officers a decent and adequate living wage. It has been largely responsible for the present unskilled labor wage of less than $125.00 a month that the Second Lieutenants who have entered the Service since the War have been compelled to exist on."

"No Congress will ever approve a pay schedule that makes the pay of every lieutenant and captain in the Army equal to that drawn by the individuals in the favored group. The pay of the whole can never be raised to the level of the pay of the preferred third. The inequalities now benefitting the latter must be removed before the entire commissioned personnel can receive deserved consideration at the hands of Congress."

"The existing pay inequalities have operated to the detriment of the Government as well as the individual officer not fortunate enough to be a member of the preferred group."

"Responsibility and consequent return in service to the Government is based upon grade and also rank within the grade. Admitting this, then remuneration by the Government in return for service rendered it by the individual should be so arranged that senior officers will receive more pay than their juniors. Furthermore, since the natural and human estimation of an officer's value is based in part upon his pay, any system which pays junior officers more than it pays their seniors must necessarily detract from the prestige and authority of the senior and is, to the extent of that detraction, subversive of discipline. The fact that over thirty-five per cent of the officers of the Army receive more compensation than their seniors has been a marked cause of lowered morale and the subject of persistent comment and controversy among all officers in the service."

"Also, those officers commissioned after June 30, 1922, resent the fact that they can count for pay purposes only active commissioned service under a Federal appointment and commissioned service in the National Guard when called out by order of the President. They see no just reason for extending to other officers the privilege of counting enlisted and non-Federal commissioned service for pay."

"They and the other officers not in the preferred group know that they are being discriminated against in order to make it possible for a comparatively small portion of the commissioned personnel to draw a bonus of $3,500,000 a year. This same amount of money equitably spread among all the officers, particularly among those in the junior grades, would give all a decent living wage. * * *

"Unless the 'preferred third' are reduced to a common denominator with the other less fortunate two-thirds, we will find that the revision (which, of course, will be downward) will still further lower the pay of the two-thirds of the officers already discriminated against."

"The preferred group do not earn a cent more than their less fortunate brothers of like rank. Why should they continue to receive a $3,500,000 bonus each year for doing the same work and assuming the same responsibilities?"

"The enactment of the Taber Amendment into law will save our Government $3,500,000 a year, remove glaring inconsistencies and injustices existing in present pay schedules, abolish a preferred class among commissioned personnel, improve service morale and efficiency, and enable the Officers of the Army in future to give solid support to any honest legislation that favors the whole and not the few."

Heads Navy General Board

Rear Admiral George R. Marvell, USN, has been appointed Chairman of the General Board, Navy Department, succeeding Rear Admiral Jehu V. Chase, USN, who retired on February 1st.

Rear Admiral Marvell was born in Fall River, Mass., September 25, 1869, and was appointed to the Naval Academy from Massachusetts in 1885. He was awarded the Navy Cross for his services during the World War in command of the Louisiana. In 1919, he was appointed Naval Inspector of Ordnance in Charge at the Naval Armor Plant and Naval Projectile Plant, Charleston, West Virginia. Commanded the battleship Arizona in 1921 and in 1922, upon promotion to the rank of Rear Admiral, was appointed Commandant of the 16th Naval District and Commandant of the Naval Station, Cavite, P. I. He commanded the Fleet Base Force from 1924 to 1926, when he went to the Naval War College, Newport, R. I., for a course of instruction. In 1927, he was ordered to duty as Commandant of the 14th Naval District and Commandant of the Naval Base at Pearl Harbor, T. H. He was given command of the Light Cruiser Divisions, Scouting Force, with additional duty in command of Light Cruiser Division 5, on November 25, 1930. Admiral Marvell has been a member of the General Board since April 1, 1932.

Navy Warrant Exams

An examination will be held during the last week of July, 1933, for the promotion of Navy enlisted men to the following warrant grades: Boatswain, Gunner, Electrician, Machinist, and Carpenter.

Candidates who qualified on the last examination for the above warrant grades and who are at present on the waiting lists will be required to again qualify on the next examination in order to be eligible for further consideration if their position on the waiting list is not reached on or about July 1, 1933.

In view of the number of candidates on the waiting list for the warrant grades of Radio Electrician, Pharmacist and Acting Pay Clerk and because of the limited number of prospective vacancies, an examination for promotion to those three grades will not be held until about the summer of 1934, and the present waiting list will therefore remain in effect for another year.

Fleet at San Francisco

Modification of the fleet operating plan so as to permit all vessels of the battle force and the scouting force to rendezvous at San Francisco following the completion of maneuvers on Feb. 18, has been announced by Adm. William V. Pratt, Chief of Operations.

The fleet will remain at San Francisco until Feb. 27 to participate in ground-breaking ceremonies for the Golden Gate Bridge. It will then sail for the San Pedro-San Diego area where the concentration will continue until March 31, as previously planned.

Representative Harry L. Englebright, 2nd Congressional District of California.

Navy Ration Bill

The House Committee on Naval Affairs has ordered favorably reported to the House a bill revising the Navy ration, which is expected, through decreased carrying costs, to save the Government $75,000 a year, while maintaining the caliber of the present ration.

No change is contemplated in the actual ration used, the revision simply being to bring the law into harmony with actual practice. Although admittedly the ration has been unbalanced for years, providing more meat and bread and less vegetables, fruit and milk than desirable, this condition has been met by issuing the food desired under a provision in the law allowing any items to be over or under estimated.

Another change proposed in the bill, HR 14438, will allow the Secretary of the Navy to increase the allowance on vessels which have a complement of less than 150 men.

Naval Observatory Threatened

Reports emanating from Warm Springs, Ga., this week are that President-elect Roosevelt, in drawing up a plan for abolition of Government bureaus and functions intends to discontinue the astronomical work performed by the Naval Observatory. Mr. Roosevelt is quoted as declaring that the Observatory has not sufficient equipment and cannot carry on its work as well as endowed civilian observatories.

If the President-elect has this view, and officials of the Observatory believe that the report is unfounded, it is believed that when the full facts are presented to him, the proposed curtailment will not be carried through. It is pointed out that the work of the Naval Observatory is confined to fundamental astronomy and that there is no civil institution in the United States which performs this function. The other observatories are engaged in research activities, and they depend to a great extent upon the work in fundamentals carried on at the naval plant.

The continuous observation of the heavenly bodies is generally carried on in other countries by a Governmental observatory, leaving the more spectacular research work to private institution. This continuous observation is absolutely necessary to navigation in order to accurately calculate the functions and changing positions of the stars. In this field the Naval Observatory is the recognized world leader.

President-elect Roosevelt also has considered the prospect of abolishing a number of obsolete Army posts as an economy move, and has requested Swager Shirley, war-time chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations, to make a study of the proposal.

Naval Officers Injured

Rear Adm. George W. Laws, USN, Commandant of the Twelfth Naval District, has reported to the Department that three naval officers, members of the postgraduate class in Diesel Engineering at the University of California, Berkeley, California, were injured when the fly wheel of an engine under test broke.

The accident occurred at the Standard Gas Engine Company, Oakland, California, during an experiment under the direction of one of the faculty of the University for a class of about 29 persons. The injured officers are: Lt. (Jg) Charles E. McDonald, USN, condition extremely critical; Lt. (Jg) Kenneth C. Hurd, USN, condition grave. Lieutenants McDonald and Hurd were taken to Highland Hospital, Oakland, Calif., and later transferred to the Crowell Memorial Hospital at Berkeley.

Lt. Louis D. Sharp, USN, whose condition permitted him to be moved to the Naval Hospital, Mare Island, Calif.

A board of investigation has been ordered by Rear Admiral Laws to inquire into the cause of the accident.

Restrict Oath Administration

Officers of the Navy are not authorized to administer oaths for any purpose other than the administration of naval justice or other naval administrative purposes, according to a recent decision of the Comptroller General.

Officers of the service have been administering oaths in connection with the Employees Compensation Commission, but after Feb. 1, such oaths will not be valid. (3 Comp. Gen. 195.)

Marine Generals Transfer

Brig. Gen. John H. Russell, USMC, on Feb. 1 assumed the duties as Assistant to the Commandant of the Marine Corps, relieving Maj. Gen. John T. Myers, USMC, who has been transferred to the West Coast to command the Department of the Pacific, with headquarters at San Francisco, Calif.

Be prepared to help in the battle for National Defense. Keep informed through the Army and Navy Journal.

San Pedro Base Studied

A study of the possibilities of developing San Pedro, Calif., into a base capable of handling a concentration of the entire United States Fleet is being made under direction of Admiral Richard H. Leigh, Commander-in-Chief of the Fleet.

Officers under Admiral Leigh's command have been conferring with prominent citizens and city officials at San Pedro and Los Angeles to see what might be done toward improving the facilities at the former port.

At the Navy Department, it was said that the study was instigated on the initiative of Admiral Leigh, that the Department had given full approval, but had informed him that there were no funds available and that anything which he might do would have to be with the aid of the local authorities. They declared that their information was that the project contemplated was not for the development of a base in the full sense of the word, but that what was in view was the improvement of terminal facilities, enlargement of docks and warehouses, etc.

Navy Nominations

"Established in obedience to an insistent demand for an official organ for members of the American Defense and those concerned with it, The Army and Navy Journal will be published in the interest of no party; it will be controlled by no clique. Its independence will be absolute. Its interests will be directed solely to the inculcation of sound military ideas and to the elevation of the public service in all its departments.—From Vol. 1, No. 1, of The Army and Navy Journal, published August 29, 1893.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1933

"To preserve the ships we now have in a sound state, to complete those already contemplated, to provide amply for prompt augmentation, is dictated by the soundest policy."—JAMES MADISON.

ASIDE FROM THE VITAL PRINCIPLE involved in the matter, it is a melancholy thing to note demagoguery rampant in what its members love to describe as the "greatest deliberative body in the world." The World War which menaced the safety of the United States ended but fourteen years ago. General Pershing when he returned from France was acclaimed for the magnificent service which he rendered as Commander-in-Chief of the American Expeditionary Force. General Harbord, as his Chief of Staff, as Commander of the Marine Brigade, and as director of the Supply Service, enjoyed, also, the plaudits of the people. The one rose to the opportunity to serve his country from a farm in Missouri through the Military Academy at West Point. The other by sheer merit moved to high command from the enlisted personnel.

Now, because these men dared to express an opinion in favor of government economy, because they joined the Economy League, the Senate has adopted an amendment to the Economy Act denying them retired pay so long as they shall draw an income of $10,000 from private employment.

Is the memory of the achievements of these great soldiers gone from the Nation? We do not believe it. Yet the representatives of the people in the Senate are seeking to punish them because they exercised the right of every citizen to join in a movement which they regarded as in the interest of the country.

For shame! General Pershing has no connection with any private corporation. Yet he is traduced by notoriety seeking politicians, and even the modest stipend allowed him by a law enacted years ago for the men of similar rank the Nation also delighted to honor, has not only been cut in accordance with a general governmental policy, but is to be taken from him entirely if he engage in "personal services" the remuneration of which is $10,000. General Harbord, by law and custom, had the right to enter into private employment when he passed from active service. He did so with the full approval and indeed upon pressure from the republican Secretary of War and the latter's democratic predecessor.

The action of the Senate is a reflection upon the Senate. It has written a sorry record of ingratitude, and worse than that has allowed itself to be used by self-seeking interests. Senator Tom Connally, of Texas, author of the amendment, should be asked who prepared the amendment, what interests will be served by it, and how promotive of treasury raids it will be. Is it intended, among other things, to throw fear into the hearts of men so that they will refrain from opposing measures designed for private benefit? The people, and especially those of Texas, are entitled to have explicit answers to these questions.

INVOLVED IN THIS MATTER is the right of officers and enlisted men to the retired pay which they have earned. When they entered the Army, the Navy or the Marine Corps, it was under a distinct contract. In return for the surrender of rights and privileges and opportunities, the Government agreed to pay them a living stipend, to provide them with quarters and light or allowances in lieu thereof, and to take care of them when disabled or aged. The system of retired pay has been recognized as valuable in adding efficiency to National Defense, aside from its humanitarian aspect. The pay of an officer or man while on active duty is far below that granted in occupations of a comparable character in civilian life, but the Government has supported this policy on the ground that it is putting aside a definite sum to be used for pay on retirement. In other words, every year an officer serves adds that much more to the amount due him from the Government. Under the retired pay system for civilian employees, a certain percentage of pay is withheld each month toward retirement. If the employee be discharged, he is entitled to receive the amount he has contributed. Not so with the Army, the Navy or the Marine Corps, or indeed with the Coast Guard, the Coast and Geodetic Survey and the Public Health Services. If any member of any of these services resign or be dropped, the Government is under no obligation to give him anything. We believe the Supreme Court of the United States, should the question come before it, will hold that the Connally amendment is in violation of governmental contract and human rights.

There is another aspect of the agitation in Congress regarding the Services which cannot be too strongly emphasized. That is the effect upon morale. General MacArthur, in the admirable statement he made before the Senate Appropriations Committee observed: "An efficient Army is a priceless possession of a Government, while an inefficient Army is the greatest extravagance a government can have." This aphorism applies with equal force to the Navy and the Marine Corps. For some years now, these services have been beset by assaults upon their existence. The Navy has been threatened with proposals in connection with disarmament conferences. Its striking force has been reduced and replacements have been opposed. The personnel has been threatened with reduction and in the case of the Marines has been actually cut. The Army has been curtailed in every possible direction, its officer strength was a subject of vigorous attack, and its appropriations for maintenance have been brought to the point of desperation. There has been constant agitation regarding pay, so that men cannot plan for the future. It is only because of the love of the Services which exists among its members, the trust reposed in its chiefs, the belief that in the end the country will see that justice is done, in short, because of the patriotic loyalty that prevails, that efficiency maintains. This is an earnest plea to the President and the President-elect and to the leaders in Congress to put an end to efforts and activities which are not only harmful to the Services but are actually dangerous to National Defense. And we may point out that situation abroad demands that that defense be kept effective.

Changing Times

Old Resident—"Pardon me, but you should say San Huan. In California we pronounce our J's like H's."

Her Destination

An old colored mammy was holding up the line in front of the ticket seller's window. "I want a ticket for Florence," she was saying.

The ticket agent, after a great deal of fumbling over railroad guides, asked, "Where is Florence?"

The old mammy replied, "There she is, sittin' over dar on de bench."

It's Army Life

On the drill field a company of Engineers was making the most gruesome possible mess out of "platoons left." A flea-bitten sergeant cast a sarcastic eye over the unhappy aggregation and then turned to the officer.

"Lootnant," he said, wearily, "I guess they thought you said 'balloons left,' so they all went up in the air."

"Do you call that a fit?" asked the tough sergeant of the nervous recruit, appearing for inspection the first time in a uniform.

"N-n-n-o sir," said the rookie shaking in his shoes, "N-n-never had a f-f-f-it in my life."

A soldier went to his colonel and asked for leave to go home to help his wife with her spring cleaning.

"I don't like to refuse you," said the colonel, "but I've just received a letter from your wife saying that you are no use around the house."

The soldier saluted and turned to go. At the door he stopped, turned, and remarked: "Colonel, there are two persons in this regiment who handle the truth loosely, and I'm one of them. I'm not married."

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Marine Corps Cut.—An edict from Speaker Garner will prevent the House appropriations committee from adding sufficient money to the Navy supply bill to provide for the maintenance of the Marine Corps at its present enlisted strength, but the committee will not oppose amendment of the bill to this effect on the floor of the House, it was learned this week.

Convinced of the danger of further reducing the Marine Corps, members of the subcommittee handling naval appropriations have given assurances to members of the House Naval Affairs Committee that the reduction in the Corps, provided in the budget, would be killed. However, in view of orders from the House leaders that no items in the budget be increased, the committee will report the bill carrying funds for but 13,600 Marines, but will not oppose the increase when proposed in the House.

The Navy bill is expected to be reported within the next week.

Naval Committee Adjourns.—The House Naval Affairs Committee decided this week to not hold any more hearings on either public or private bills during the remaining days of the session.

Representative Carl Vinson, chairman of the committee, announced, following this action, that the group would give consideration to the Navy Staff Corps personnel bill early in the next Congress. There had been some intention on the part of the committee to take up this measure at once, but the impossibility of passing it at the present session caused it to be held up. In speaking of the measure, Chairman Vinson said that he thought it was a good bill and ought to be passed.

The committee action also puts off the contemplated revision and simplification of the Navy pay tables being studied by Chairman Vinson. In deciding not to meet, the committee pigeon-holed the bill for the promotion of Comdr. Cleary, upon which it was then holding hearings.

Radio Helps Services.—In addition to the host of favorable editorials appearing in the daily press, much support is being given to the movement to rid the services of the dangerous pending legislation by spokesmen over the radio. One of the most active has been Mr. Edwin C. Hill who gives the "Human Side of the News" over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

"With the Taber Amendment," Mr. Hill declared in a recent broadcast, "which makes a terrific reduction in the pay of more than 5,000 Army Officers, and the Connery Amendment which deprives every retired and ageing officer of a dollar of pay if he has an income of as much as $3,000 a year, thoroughly unjust bills, both of them, Congress strikes at the very root of our defensive forces. The ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL states without any qualification that the Chief of Staff, General Douglas MacArthur, is desperately concerned over the action of the House. I can assure you, of my own knowledge, that there is deep concern throughout the Army and Navy and the Marine Corps—not so much concern over the spiltwork that would punish them with a loss of pay—but because of the sure knowledge that the bill, if passed by the Senate, would wreck the services—wreck them at a time when the United States is probably closer to war than she has been for fourteen years. But first, I would like to read a few sentences from two letters. One came to me from a poorly paid Captain in the Medical Corps of the Army.

"If this bill becomes a law," he writes, "we shall never be out of debt. Nearly all officers of my rank, almost without exception, will never get higher rank than that of captain. That means that we shall have to serve forty-five years, or more, to get the pay of thirty years of service. And that is impossible, as we are forced to retire at the age of 64. In the meantime, our children cannot hope to receive more than a common-school education—if, indeed, they can get that.

"One harassed by debts is handicapped in his efficiency, and we certainly will need all of our efficiency in the years to come." This captain is one of the 5,000-and-odd hit by the Taber amendment."

Eliminating Army Paper Work.—Pursuant to the policy of the Chief of Staff, the Surgeon General has initiated a large saving in paper work and has eliminated considerable duplication of effort, especially at the General Hospitals. Under the present practice approximately 25,000 register cards (Form 52 MD) of Veterans' Administration patients are received annually in the Surgeon General's Office where they are not utilized. Complete data on veterans admitted to Army hospitals are furnished by said hospitals to the Veterans' Administration on forms prescribed by that bureau. AR 40-1025 has been amended so that the total number of patient days of Veterans' Administration beneficiaries will be entered on Form 51, MD.

Another great saving in time and effort on the part of organization commanders has been accomplished by the approval of the Chief of Staff of a change in W.D., A.G.O. Form No. 39 "Notification of Discharge." Heretofore this form carried all data appearing later on the Final Statement. In future the only data which will appear on the Notification of Discharge will be the soldier's name, serial number, grade, rating, organization and date of discharge and the signatures of the soldier and the organization commander.

Retired Officers Association.—The Retired Officers Association, from their main office 401 Van Nuys Building, Los Angeles, Cal., are sending out this week, to every officer, both commissioned and warrant, active and retired, a letter which gives a very clear exposition of the harm which will be occasioned, to not only the officers themselves, but to the morale of our entire National Defence forces, should the McClintic Bill or the Connery or Taber amendments to the Army Appropriation Bill be enacted into legislation by Congress. It is a letter which should be of intense interest to the services and very carefully read and acted upon. Their representative in Washington—Colonel Marix—has been working night and day in opposition to the passage of these vicious pieces of legislation which it is hoped will meet with defeat during the present Congress.

Cross-Country Travel Kit.—A new traveling bag for every item of wearing apparel that could be imagined as necessary on cross-country duty was designed by Maj. E. L. Hoffman and made up in experimental numbers in the Equipment Branch of the Air Corps Materiel Division at Wright Field.

Constructed of 22-ounce khaki duck, the dimensions are 35 inches long by 22 wide, and the weight, 8½ pounds. All openings are of the zipper type. The main compartment, which covers the full dimensions of the bag, is 4 inches deep. In one end are snapped two hangers. Under these hangers is a label which reads: "Coat hanger will carry two coats. Other hanger will carry two pants plus overcoat folded in middle." The length of the bag permits the coats to lie flat without folding. On both outer sides of the main compartment are pockets, all duly labeled and zipper operated. On one outer side are five, as follows: for handkerchiefs; for tobacco, pipes, matches, etc. (18x7"); for toilet articles, towels, and soap (18x7"); for cap and ties, with a stiff holder to keep ties from wrinkling (15x6"); for shirts laid flat (20x12"). On the other outer side are three similar pockets, as follows: for underwear and pajamas (9x18"); for shoes and socks, with draw-string bags for shoes (9x18"); for soiled clothing (20x12").

The bag has a lateral stiffener across the center and is carried by a handle placed at top end. If desired, it may be folded longitudinally once, snap tabs securing the bottom end to the top end under the handle. Besides lightness of weight and low cost, the main convenience of the bag lies in the ease with which the smaller various articles may be located without musing or disturbing the main articles of clothing.

Degrees for Military, Naval and Coast Guard Graduates.—A bill authorizing the conferring of the degree of bachelor of science upon graduates of the Military Academy, the Naval Academy and the Coast Guard academies was favorably reported by the House Military Affairs Committee at a meeting of the group Feb. 7. Similar legislation applying only to the Naval Academy, was reported by the House Naval Affairs Committee several weeks ago and is now on the calendar of the House. The proposal to give degrees to service academy graduates originated in the Navy Department, with the principal idea of aiding future graduates of Annapolis who will not be commissioned in the Navy because of strength limitations. As drafted however, both of the bills would authorize degrees for "all graduates" and would permit past as well as future graduates to be given degrees, if the Departments concerned, make provision for this. The War Department, in reporting favorably on the measure, stated:

"A comparison of the curriculum at the Military Academy with that of other leading institutions granting the degree of bachelor of science, made on the basis of subjects covered and the actual hours devoted thereto, and taking into consideration the rigid methods, small classes under each instructor and the absolute control of the student boy at the Military Academy indicates conclusively a comparatively high standing. The graduates, therefore, have an education the equivalent of which in other institutions would entitle them to a degree of bachelor of science.

"It would appear reasonable then to grant them a similar degree.

"In support of the above comparison, the course at the Military Academy has been investigated, approved, and listed by the Association of American Universities, a standardizing agency which passes upon the general educational standing of colleges and universities in America.

"While the above facts are known to persons acquainted with the Military Academy, they are not generally known.

"A Senate bill authorizing degrees for Naval Academy graduates was passed by the Senate yesterday."

Suppressed CMTC Pamphlet.—General Douglas MacArthur, Chief of Staff, was quoted this week in the Senate as being in agreement with Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, as to the "unwisdom" of the use in the Citizens' Military Training Camps of pamphlets condemning public ownership of public utilities and other progressive ideas in government.

Senator Norris attacked the War Department for permitting the teaching of such ideas in the C.M.T.C., inferring that this was done at the present time. Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, however, in reply, pointed out that this pamphlet was suppressed some time ago.

"I am authorized by the Chief of Staff to say," Senator Reed declared, "that he agrees with the Senator from Nebraska as to the unwisdom of any such instructions; that as soon as he first saw that pamphlet, and saw that part of it, he ordered the pamphlet withdrawn from circulation and suppressed, revoked; and it has not since then been used in any training camp in this country."

economical and efficient than present arrangements. It would also conform to the war-time experience of the United States and other countries. In time of war, all procurement activities, whether of supplies or munitions, in order to be effective, must needs be concentrated in and coordinated through one central agency under experienced and trained civilian administration. Trained military forces are also thus left free for combatant activities.

"Such necessary wartime changes also require under emergency conditions the complete adaptation and coordination of private commerce and industry to the production of supplies and munitions. How much more effective would it be, therefore, to develop under peace conditions a centralized department of procurement and munitions which through cooperation could effectively plan for the use of our industrial facilities should another war emergency occur.

"In such an event, all private facilities necessary for war purposes should be commandeered to be returned in their pre-war condition after the closing of the war, together with a reasonable return on invested capital for the period of the war. Private enterprise should not be permitted to make extraordinary profits during the war."

Architects and Engineers

"The committee recommends that all architectural supervision, including the activities of the Supervising Architect's Office, of the Treasury, the Veterans' Bureau, the War, Navy, and other departments, should be centralized and stress placed upon general administration, rather than upon the drawing of plans and local supervision. We recommend that in the drawing of plans and in arranging for supervision of construction in different sections of the country, that provision be made for the employment of resident architects of ability, at established rates of compensation, as provided for in H. R. 6187.

"The same principle should be followed by the Supervising Architect's Office, and other departments of the government, in employing engineering assistance. Wherever practicable local engineers should be retained.

"The committee also recommends that the Supervising Architect's Office have blue-print work for construction purpose done locally instead of having work of this kind forwarded to Washington to be performed."

Army, Navy and Marine Corps Bands

"This committee believes that the present laws regulating the use of service bands are entirely inadequate to prevent the competition which the committee believes to be an abuse of their functions as service bands, as for example in touring the country, in performing service at private functions, and in performing service at public functions for added compensation or when an admission charge is made.

Arsenals and Navy Yards

"The committee has heard a great deal of evidence with reference to the activities of the arsenals and the navy yards.

"These are so intimately connected with the whole field of national defense that the committee does not feel justified in making specific recommendations with reference to curtailing or continuing their various activities.

"We have recommended, in another section, that a study be made of all cost-accounting factors in government work to determine the actual cost to the government. After such a study shall have been made, then we would be inclined to favor, as consistent with the general attitude of this committee, the award to private industry of such activities of arsenals and navy yards as are not incompatible with national defense."

Barge Line

"The committee recommends that the service of the Federal Barge Line, conducted by the Inland Waterways Corporation, should be discontinued and liquidated by sale to private enterprise."

Canteens—Navy Stores and Commissaries

"Existing Army and Navy exchanges and commissaries had their origin in the canteen established to meet the personal and other requirements of officers and enlisted men because of the isolation and inaccessibility of certain Army posts principally in the unsettled sections of the west and because of the long voyages in past years of battleships and other fighting craft. The rapid growth and settlement of the country, however, and the development of more speedy means of maritime transport, have largely eliminated these early conditions and the need for such establishments in the Army and Navy have practically disappeared. As a consequence, post exchanges, as well as naval stores, with certain exceptions as in Alaska, Panama Canal and other remote or isolated locations, no longer require the support and supervision of the government and should be abolished.

"In the exceptional circumstances noted, they should be permitted, but under no conditions should they be allowed to compete with available private business institutions.

Section 4 of War Department Appropriations Act of July 14, 1932, provides that government funds for Army post exchanges shall not be used except for 'real assistance and convenience to enlisted men and their families, and troops, etc.' The committee recommends that similar legislation be passed for the regulation of Navy stores and commissaries.

"With respect to all commodities which in private merchandising are subject to federal or state excise taxes, such as gasoline, tobacco, etc., the committee recommends that they not be sold unless they carry such excise taxes.

"The committee recommends, with respect to theaters, moving-picture shows, and like entertainments, that the public be excluded."

Clothing and Leather Goods

"The committee recommends that the operation of the uniform plants, maintained by the War Department at Philadelphia, and the Navy Department at Brooklyn; also the depot at Jeffersonville, Indiana, maintained by the Army for the manufacture of uniforms, saddles, and other purposes, be discontinued as soon as practicable, and the properties liquidated. The committee is not unmindful of the existing situation as to unemployment and deflated property values, and would, therefore, suggest that the discontinuance and liquidation of these properties be performed with due consideration of the human interests and property values involved."

Construction

"The committee recommends for reasons of economy that the Corps of Army Engineers, the Reclamation Service, and other government departments and bureaus engaged in constructive work should, so far as possible, enter into contracts with private competitive bidders, and discontinue, so far as possible, the performance of work with government personnel and government-purchased equipment."

Helium

"As certain private interests have developed plants for producing helium at considerable outlay and expense, we recommend that the Army and Navy adopt the policy of allotting a fair portion of their requirements to private producers, provided that the contract cost shall approximate that of government manufacture. Such a policy, would, if practicable, provide additional protection to the country in the event of an emergency."

Laundries, Dry Cleaning and Dyeing Establishments

"Laundries, dry cleaning and dyeing establishments maintained by the Army, Navy and other departments should be restricted absolutely to actual service requirements, and under no circumstances should they interfere with private business adjoining Navy Yards or Army Posts and Reservations."

Medical Supplies

"The committee recommends that government bureaus refrain from competing with private enterprises in the production and sale of serum, virus, and other biological and pharmaceutical preparations."

Army, Navy and Canal Zone Transport Service

"The committee recommends that the Army transport service and the ship service of the Panama Railroad company be discontinued."

Paints and Varnishes

"The manufacture of paints and varnishes at the Norfolk, San Francisco, Philadelphia, Charleston and other Navy Yards should be discontinued."

Restaurants

"The establishment of restaurants in government buildings and at government expense as a rule constitute an unwarranted encroachment upon private business without benefit to the government. Government building space without compensation should not be devoted to such undertakings. Government personnel during government hours should not be used in such enterprises.

"If Congress should at any time decide that space should be made available for restaurants in government buildings, the authorization should be limited to the space itself, and should not extend to the purchase of equipment with public funds.

"Should government employees, whether civilian or military, desire to establish cooperative stores, cafeterias, restaurants, or other enterprises, they have the right, of course, to do so, but in no case should space in government buildings or on government reservations be assigned to such cooperatives, unless other space is unavailable, in which event space should be made available to such cooperatives under competitive conditions, or, in other words, at rentals which would be paid by any other private rental enterprise. Under no conditions should civilian employees or those of the military establishments be used in the service or administration of these cooperative organizations. The attitude and action of the government should be to maintain an equality of competitive conditions, so far as the government is concerned, between employee cooperatives and other private business establishments."

Ship Salvaging

"Complaint has been made by private ship salvaging concerns that the Coast Guard has gone into the business of salvaging ships and cargoes in competition with them. No complaint is made of Coast Guard assistance given to save life in casualties of the sea, but we do recommend that the salvaging of ships and cargoes by the Coast Guard be discontinued, except in an emergency situation pending the arrival of private facilities."

Standing Committee

"The committee recommends that there be created a standing committee of the House of Representatives, to be known as a Standing Committee on Government Competition with Private Enterprise. It is the sense of the resolution that no appropriation is at present needed for such a committee, but that the importance of this subject justifies the creation of a standing committee of the House in the interest of economy and the protection of the rights of our citizens."

The report is an exhaustive document of more than 500 typewritten pages. In addition the record of the investigation consists of 37 volumes and there are six volumes of exhibits and formal statements. The report is signed by Representatives Joseph B. Shannon, Democrat of Missouri, chairman; Samuel B. Pettengill, democrat, of Indiana; William H. Stafford, republican, of Wisconsin, and Robert F. Rich, republican, of Pennsylvania. The other member of the committee, E. E. Cox, Georgia democrat, did not sign the majority report but expressed minority views, taking exception specifically to the recommendations relating to Federal Barge Line service and the Farm Board.

The report is replete with charges of unfair competition of government with private enterprise. Regarding the bands a letter was reproduced alleged to have been sent out under government frank soliciting business for the service band of the Headquarters detachment of the Marine Corps at Brooklyn, N. Y. Under Post Exchanges the report detailed pur-

FILM GOT IT FREE!

Remove film—the most important step in saving teeth

YEAR AFTER YEAR film endangered this poor tooth. Year after year the neglected tooth helplessly resisted. Film formed constantly—and each new coat contained millions of decay germs. One day the acids these germs produced ate through nature's defense-wall of enamel and tooth's fight was lost. A masterpiece nature had taken years to build—a precious tooth—was doomed to come out!

What is this film?

What is this film that robs us of our teeth? A slippery, sticky coating formed by the mucin in saliva. It stains teeth yellow. It catches bits of food which soon decay. Yes, but that's not all! Film contains millions of tiny germs.

Some are rod-shaped, grouped in clusters. These are decay germs. As they live they give off enzymes that produce lactic acid.

This lactic acid dissolves tooth enamel just as other acids eat holes in wool or cloth. Other germs are linked with "trench mouth"—still others with pyorrhea.

"What must I do to fight film?"

To fight film use Pepsodent instead of ordinary tooth pastes. Why? Because a tooth paste is only as good as its polishing material—not one bit better. The new polishing material in Pepsodent is one of the great discoveries of the day. Its power to remove every trace of film stain is revolutionary! Its notable distinction of being twice as soft as polishing materials in common use has gained wide recognition. Remember the one safe way to fight film is to use the special film-removing tooth paste—Pepsodent. Use it without fail twice a day and see your dentist at least twice a year.

Pepsodent—is the special film-removing tooth paste

The Senate committee also inserted a proviso in the bill authorizing the employment on active duty of one retired officer in addition to the two now authorized.

In the items appropriating for the maintenance of laundries and dry cleaning plants the House had inserted a restriction that its use was only for the operating of "existing" plants. The Senate committee recommended that this be changed to "existing or now under construction."

The House voted two sections in the bill withholding pay from officers and enlisted men of the National Guard and of the Organized Reserves who draw pensions or retired pay from the government. In the case of the National Guard the House added the phrase "for a disability in excess of ten per centum." The Senate committee struck this latter limitation out. This action was taken on recommendation of the National Guard Association.

The House restriction prohibiting further enrollments in R.O.T.C. units of the Air Corps, Medical Corps, Dental Corps or Veterinary Corps was modified to apply the prohibition only to the Air Corps.

The testimony of General Douglas MacArthur, Chief of Staff, was a vital factor in guiding the Senate committee in its deliberations. (General MacArthur's testimony was printed in the JOURNAL last week.)

Brig. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, adjutant general of Maryland, and chairman of the American Legion's National Defense committee, gave very telling testimony against the Connery and Taber amendments. The General spoke for the Legion and also gave testimony for the National Guard Association.

Col. L. Kemper Williams, Inf-Res, National President of the Reserve Officers Association, testified in behalf of the association, hitting also at the Taber and Connery Amendments and speaking in favor of Reserve appropriations. C.M. T.C. and R.O.T.C. Capt. John B. Murphy, MI-Res, assistant National Secretary of the organization, also submitted to the committee a splendid brief along the same lines for General Williams.

chases made by civilians from such exchanges of articles ranging from women's pajamas to gin drops. Writing of automobile insurance policies by post exchanges also was cited. The report contended that a distinct advantage the post exchanges have over the private trader is its ability to extend credit with absolute certainty of collection.

The general and original sources of the complaints against governmental competition, the report stated, were the United States Chamber of Commerce, the National Manufacturers Association, and the Federation of American Business.

Much of the data submitted by the Chamber of Commerce was quoted at length in the committee's report. This report of the Chamber of Commerce's special committee was covered in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL at the time it was rendered.

News of the Coast Guard

Plans for the Inaugural Parade, March 4, contemplate the participation of the Coast Guard Academy band and two companies of bluejackets from two of the Coast Guard's cruising cutters, it was revealed this week. Selection of the two cutters to be ordered to Washington will be made within the next week or so.

Arrangements for the service are in the hands of Capt. Leon C. Coville, who has been designated as aide on the staff of General John J. Pershing, grand marshal of the parade. An Army colonel, a Marine Corps colonel and a Navy captain will act with the assistant commandant on General Pershing's staff.

According to the talk around Headquarters, Captain Coville has been spending some time on horseback at late at Ft. Humphreys, Va., where his brother, an Army engineer, is executive officer, renewing an accomplishment of his earlier years which he has little opportunity to practice during his years at sea.

Announcement was made yesterday of the appointment of Mr. Floyd Soule, formerly with the Carnegie Institute, as Senior Physical Oceanographer with Ice Patrol.

Officers of the service who are graduates of the Coast Guard Academy may be able to add the letters B.S. after their names if a bill now before Congress is enacted.

Representative Harold Knutson of Minnesota last week introduced a measure which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs of the House, providing that the "Superintendents of the United States Naval Academy, the United States Military Academy and the United States Coast Guard Academy may, under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Navy, the Secretary of War, and the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, confer the degree of bachelor of science upon all graduates of their respective academies."

A bill identical in language except that it applies only to the Navy is now on the calendars of both the Senate and House, having been favorably reported by the Naval Affairs Committees of those bodies. This measure, which bears the endorsement of the Navy Department and the Bureau of Education, of the Department of Interior would in the opinion of Rear Adm. Frank B. Upham, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, permit the Navy to give degrees to previous graduates of the Naval Academy as well as future ones.

The military committee reported the bill to the House, after a hearing Feb. 7.

One of the longest relief expeditions ever made by a Coast Guard vessel was accomplished last week, when Capt. J. A. Alger, acting under orders from Headquarters in Washington, took the Chelan to the aid of the S. S. Everett, which was reported in distress 960 miles west of Seattle, Jan. 27. Officers at Headquarters were of the opinion that except for a rescue made during the World War by a Coast Guard vessel enroute from Europe, this was the farthestest from shore that a vessel of the Guard had ever gone to aid a ship in distress.

Upon a special order from the President, Mr. O. M. Maxam, Chief of the Division of Operations at Headquarters, was exempted from the provisions of the Economy Act requiring retirement upon reaching the statutory age. Mr. Maxam was seventy on Jan. 29. A former assistant superintendent of the Life Saving Service before its merger with the Revenue Cutter Service, Mr. Maxam has spent nearly a half century in the Government service.

Promotion of warrant officers to be commissioned warrant officers after six years' service in the warrant grade is provided in a bill introduced in the House by Representative Warren this week. The bill (HR 14261) entitled "a bill to provide warrant officers of the Coast Guard parity of promotion with warrant officers of the Navy" was referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign. It is as follows: "Be it enacted, etc., That warrant officers of the Coast Guard who have completed or shall hereafter complete six years' service as such shall be commissioned chief warrant officers of the Coast Guard after passing satisfactorily such examinations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe: Provided, That a chief warrant officer promoted from the grade of warrant officer shall suffer no reduction in pay by reason of such promotion."

FT. SNELLING, MINN.

Feb. 5, 1933

The newly organized Ft. Snelling Dramatic Club will give its first presentation Feb. 18 at 8.15 P. M. at the Post Theatre. The three-act comedy, "Skidding," by Anrania Rounerol, will be presented. Mrs. John L. Pauley, jr., in the part of Marion Hardy will have the leading role. Mrs. Charles M. Seebach is directing the play.

The 1933 Ft. Snelling Military Show will consist of 12 feature acts. The garrison has been canvassed and a group of ten officers and about 50 enlisted men with previous experience in expert horsemanship has been selected and trained to make this the best show of its kind put on at the fort in years. The tentative program has been drawn up to include the following acts: Silent Drill and Butt's Manual by the 3rd Infantry Crack Drill Squads, two chuckers of Indoor Polo, Cossack Riding and Monkey Drill, "Whiskey," Mounted Jousting, Mounted Saber Drills, 8-line Mule Teams, Lancer Drill and the famous 8-gun drill of Battery "F," 15th Field Artillery. The program furnishes about two hours of very interesting entertainment. Each number is a model of precision. Precision is stressed to a very high degree, so much so that unless each member of the acts is not exactly in his place at precisely the proper second something disastrous will happen to the careless performer.

The evening of Feb. 9 has been reserved for St. Paul residents. The Senior and Junior Associations of Commerce of St. Paul are sponsoring this performance. Mr. E. A. McKay, of the Junior Association of Commerce, has been placed in charge of arrangements for that evening. All seats are reserved and may be obtained at Field-Schlick and the Golden Rule in St. Paul or by calling Miss Miller at the association office at Cedar, 4210.

Capacity houses are expected for both nights. A committee composed of Ft. Snelling officers has been appointed to take care of seating and ushering arrangements. A show master of rare ability has been appointed to supervise the arrangement of events so that there will be no lost motion in this very professional performance. Fans of past years will bear out the fact that spectators will be kept in a state of excitement from the opening gun to the playing of the National Anthem at the conclusion without a moment of relief from this suspense.

Lt. Carter M. Kolb has left the post for his home in Princeton, Ind., where he will visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. M. ## OBITUARIES

The country and particularly the men who served with General Pershing in France, and of course the Army, deeply sympathize with him in the loss of his brother James F. Pershing, who died in a New York hospital Thursday of heart disease following a paralytic stroke. Mr. Pershing leaves a widow, nee Jessie Jackson, and two sons, James F. Jr., and Frank, both of whom served as infantry officers in the A.E.F. Funeral services will be held in Chicago. General Pershing and his sister, Miss Mae Pershing, received news of their loss in Texas, while enroute to Ft. Huachuca.

Mr. Pershing was born Jan. 18, 1862, in LaCade, Mo., the birthplace also of the General. After graduation from normal school he went to Chicago where he engaged in clothing manufacture and subsequently founded his own firm. Later he organized an insurance firm with headquarters in Jersey City.

Earnest, thorough, industrious, he took part in many public and humanitarian movements. For a time he was president of the Boy Scouts council of Jersey City. He enjoyed the love and respect of his neighbors as well as of all those who know of his activities. A resolution has been introduced in the House of Representatives expressing the sympathy of the House with the city.

The War Department has been notified of the death of Maj. Gen. Edgar T. Collins, Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3 (Operations & Training), at Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C., this morning, Feb. 10.

General Collins was born in Williamsport, Pa., March 7, 1873. He entered the U. S. Military Academy June 15, 1893, and was graduated and commissioned an additional second lieutenant of infantry June 11, 1897. He was promoted through grades to major general June 1, 1932.

General Collins is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Allison J. Barnett, wife of Capt. Allison J. Barnett, of Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and Mrs. Frederick Viehe Armistead.

Senate Passes Economy Bill

combat with an enemy of the United States." On motion of Senator George, of Georgia, the Senate amended this section to exempt "regular and emergency commissioned officers retired for disability incurred in service and directly connected and not by legal presumption with such service."

The other amendment prevents any retired officer who receives compensation for personal services in private life at a rate in excess of $10,000 per year, from drawing his retired pay. It also would prevent any officer on the active list holding a civil position under the Government from receiving any pay from the Government in excess of his service pay.

Senator Connally of Texas was the sponsor of this amendment, and though Senators Hale of Maine and Barkley of Kentucky protested the measure was adopted without a record vote.

The amendment reads: "Section 212 is amended by adding at the end of paragraph (a) the following:

"Provided, That no retired officer of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps or Coast Guard, who in private life receives from any corporation, partnership, association or individual an income, salary, compensation or bonus for personal services at a rate of pay equal to or in excess of $10,000 per annum, shall receive during the period of such employment any retired pay from the Government of the United States. Nor shall any officer on the active list receive any compensation from any corporation the majority of the stock of which is owned by the United States, or from any department of the United States Government or from the municipal government of the District of Columbia, any compensation in excess of the salary and allowances of such officer as an active officer of the respective services."

"I desire to call the attention of the Senate to the injustice in restricting the retired officers who are in the Government employment to a maximum of $3,000 a year and permitting retired officers who are out in private life, many of whom are earning very large and handsome salaries from corporations and other organizations, to receive retirement pay without any restriction," stated Senator Connally in presenting the amendment.

After lengthy debate, the Senate on Feb. 7 adopted the Bratton amendment which directs the heads of the executive departments and other agencies to make a five per cent cut in the appropriations for their department. The provision as drafted by Senator Bratton of New Mexico, would have left it to the discretion of the departmental head as to how and where the reductions would be made. Before passing the proviso, however, it was amended to prevent the executives from reducing pay or ordering furloughs in making the cut. Senator Costigan of Colorado sponsored this restriction.

The provision, as amended, is as follows:

"The head of each executive department and independent establishment is authorized and directed to make such reductions in the expenditures from the appropriations made by the regular annual appropriations act for the several purposes of his department or establishment for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934 (except, in the case of the Treasury Department, appropriations for acquisition of sites for and construction of public buildings and the appropriation for addition to the cumulative sinking fund pursuant to section 308 of the emergency relief and construction act of 1932), as will in the aggregate equal at least 5 per cent of the total amount so appropriated for his department or establishment for such year (excluding, in the case of the Treasury Department, the appropriations specified above). Such reductions shall be made in a manner calculated to bring about the greatest economy in expenditures consistent with the efficiency of the service. In making any reductions in expenditures provided for in this section no wage cuts, other reduced compensations or furloughs shall be ordered."

The vote on the Bratton amendment was 50 to 33, while the Costigan amendment was adopted 52 to 30.

Following the approval of this provision the Senate voted down, 39 to 44, the committee proposal for an additional 12 2/3 per cent pay cut. It then reduced the pay cut applying to enlisted men earlier adopted from 10 to 8 1/3 per cent, to conform with this action.

The committee proposal for an 8 1/3 per cent cut in pensions or disability allowances was defeated after a short debate.

An unsuccessful attempt was made to exclude the War and Navy Departments from the mandatory provisions of the Bratton amendment. As proposed by Senator Reed, the proviso "authorized" the heads of those departments to make the five per cent reduction in appropriations but did not "direct" them to make the cut as provided in the Bratton amendment.

After considerable debate, the Reed proposal was defeated, 47 to 34.

Title IV of the act gives sweeping powers to the President to reorganize, consolidate or abolish any agency in the executive departments. The powers given are very broad, the President being authorized to take almost any action in this regard except to eliminate or combine executive departments. The President's action can be overturned only by a new law, which would require his approval, or that it be passed over his veto. In other words, it will require a two-thirds vote of Congress to overturn the President's action.

As this is a Senate amendment, the House must agree, but from the statements of Democratic House leaders, that body is expected to concur.

The amendment lifting the ban on automatic increases was adopted by the Senate without a record vote. The only objection came from Senator Frazier of (Continued on Next Page)

North Dakota, who said that he felt there was some reason for it as far as the postal employees were concerned, but that he would like to see the ban on increases in the Army and Navy left in the bill.

The recommendation of the Committee that the provision in the Economy Act as to travel allowances, suspending the payment of mileage to officers of the armed services, be eliminated was adopted without debate. Senator Bingham, in presenting the amendment, declared that the Comptroller General had told the Committee that there would be a saving to the Government if mileage rather than per diem was the basis for the services.

Another committee amendment adopted reduced the travel allowances when traveling by private automobile from seven cents a mile to five cents a mile and allowances for motorcycles from three to two cents a mile. The Senate also adopted an amendment to the effect that whenever actual expenses for travel are allowed, such expenses shall not exceed the lowest first-class rate by the transportation facility used in such travel.

There was considerable debate over the committee proposal to require four year tours of duty on foreign stations, and after a fight led by Senator Reed, the provision was amended so as to only apply to Hawaii.

Senator Bingham told the Senate that the matter had not been given much consideration by his committee but that they had agreed to put the limitation in the bill and take it to conference and then let representatives of the Army and Navy testify as to its merits. He, however, argued in favor of the proviso, declaring that as it allowed the four year tour of duty to be shortened when the "health of the officer or the public interest requires" there could be no objection.

Senator Reed and Senator Johnson of California made a strong but futile fight against the extension of the payless furlough and pay cut to active and retired enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard.

Senator Johnson read to the Senate a letter from the Chief of Staff, opposing reduction of enlisted pay, and pointing out that application of the cut to retired men would be discriminatory as retired civil service personnel are not affected by the reduction whereas they may receive a pension or disability allowance for war service in addition to their retired pay. He also read a letter from Representative-elect J. H. Hoeppel of California, a retired Army enlisted man, protesting against the proposal.

A roll call vote was demanded on Senator Johnson's amendment to exclude retired enlisted men from the reduction, and was defeated 31 to 22. After this was defeated, the Committee amendment extending the pay cut to both retired and active personnel was adopted without a record vote.

The letter from the Chief of Staff to Senator Johnson follows in full text:

Your letter dated January 10, 1933, with reference to the provision of the economy bill which seeks to include enlisted men, both retired and active, in the class to which the 10 per cent pay cut will be applied, was received by me late yesterday.

You state that an amendment is proposed that will exempt retired enlisted men from this cut the same as civil-service personnel are now exempted. You request my views respecting the above provision for use in connection with the proposed amendment.

At the outset I may say that I am strongly opposed to a cut in the pay of enlisted men, both retired and active. The reasons are based upon somewhat different considerations, but, as I view the matter, they are equally compelling.

As to retired enlisted men the most important considerations may be listed as follows:

They are debarred from receiving any pension, compensation, or disability allowances, even though totally disabled from war service.

The retired civil-service personnel receive no cut; however, they are permitted to draw pension, compensation, and disability allowance, even though their military service was no longer than 90 days and their disabilities arose as much as 30 years after the war in which they served.

The pay of retired enlisted men has been earned. It has always been considered and is a part of their pay for services already rendered. To take from them a portion of this pay is a positive breach of faith.

Military personnel have received since 1908 an average increase of only about 11 per cent, while the increase of civilian employees has been much greater, in some instances well over 100 per cent.

It is just, proper, and equitable that retired civil-service personnel should be exempted from the pay cut, but this is equally true as to retired enlisted men. In the case of the former a direct contribution in cash was made by them to their retirement fund. In the case of the latter their retired pay was taken into consideration when fixing their active-duty pay, resulting in the lowest scale of pay in the Government service. In both cases, contributions to the respective retirement funds result, the only difference being that one is direct, the other is indirect.

As to active enlisted men I view this proposed cut with the gravest concern.

The men to whom the cut will apply generally are men of long service, holding positions of responsibility that in civil life or in civil positions of the Government would command much higher pay than they receive. They are key men in our national defense. The effect upon the morale of these key men would be very detrimental to our national defense in these troublous times, when that morale should be kept at the highest possible point.

Accordingly I strongly recommend that section 4 (a) (2) be amended by striking out that portion which reads:

"Section 104 (b) and section 106 are amended by striking out 'except enlisted'; section 104 (b) is amended by striking out 'does not include the active or retired pay of the enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard; and'."
